In Gold We Trust Report

Abolade Akinfenwa

Contributor

What is your role, and what makes working behind the scenes of In Gold We Trust so special to you?

I contribute research and financial writing, helping turn complex commodity and market-structure ideas into clear, evidence-based analysis. What makes the work special is the intellectual rigor and genuine collaboration behind every page.

Where in the world are your working from?

I work remotely from Nigeria as part of a truly international team.

Gold is considered the ultimate "safe haven".
Where is your personal “safe haven” to recharge your batteries?

The gym. It is where I switch off, reset, and return with a clearer mind.

At In Gold We Trust, we think a lot about the future. If you could travel 20 years into the future: What is one thing you hope remains unchanged?

The freedom to think independently, question assumptions, and keep learning.

What makes the In Gold We Trust Report truly unique?
Is there a memorable story, fun fact, or number that comes to your mind?

It connects monetary history, markets, geopolitics, and the physical economy in a way few reports do. What always strikes me is how much research and debate can sit behind one seemingly simple chart or paragraph.

Meet the Team behind the In Gold We Trust Report

What has been your most memorable moment since joining the In Gold We Trust team?

Watching “The Collapse of Commodity Beta” develop from an early idea into a rigorous contribution through several rounds of research, debate, and refinement.

Imagine you were gifted a real, heavy gold bar today; on the condition that you cannot sell or invest it. What would you use it for?

I would use it as the world’s most valuable paperweight, and as a daily reminder that real value still has weight.
